THE PORT OF ALEXANDRIA.

The secretary of war has transmitted to the House of Representatives a letter enclosing a letter from the chief of engineers in regard to the examination and survey of the Potomac river at Alexandria. Among other things the secretary says: "The city of Alexandria is one of the oldest cities in the United States and has long been a port of entry. Bills of lading dating back to 1732 are in existence, but it had been established as a port prior to that. The present population of Alexandria is nearly 20,000 and is said to be increasing. The city contains about 400 mercantile and industrial establishments. Two marine railways, one of them the largest on the river, are located at Alexandria, and about 100 vessels of various kinds and sizes call from this port. At least five different lines of railroad pass through Alexandria and tracks skirt the wharf front, forming the only direct rail and water connections of any importance on the Potomac. No such connection exists at Washington, save for a coal trolley recently established on the Anacostia. Shepherd's Landing, opposite Alexandria is used almost exclusively in connection with the lines at Alexandria. The former railroad terminals at Pope's Creek, Quantico Creek, and Aquia Creek have been abandoned. As a result, it is claimed that most of the water-rail shipments of Washington are handled at Alexandria, while the shipments to and from the country extending inland from 50 to 75 miles are largely made from that port up to twenty years ago the main current of the Potomac was deflected from the opposite Maryland shore above Shepherd's Landing and ran close in front of the wharves at Alexandria, maintaining a depth of 20 feet or more along the entire wharf front. During the great freshet of June, 1889 an old Hudson river steamer about 300 feet long, which had been converted into a barge, was sunk off the outlet of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, at the upper end of the Alexandria wharf front. This wreck intercepted the current, which had hitherto swept past the city front, and deflected it toward the opposite shore with the result that a bar of soft mud has been gradually formed until the depth of water in front of the upper wharves has become too shallow for commercial purposes and the effect of the shoal is beginning to be felt even at the lower end. Statistics of trade for the calendar year 1906 have been carefully compiled by Mr. J. T. Preston, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce. They show a total of receipts of 190,661 tons valued at $1,890,546, and a total of shipments of 87,765 tons, valued at $1,226,106 exclusive of the trans and vehicles transported by the Washington and Alexandria ferry line. The principal articles of commerce are coal, fertilizer, glass bottles, ice, lumber, oil, phosphate rock, railroad ties, sand, white lead, groceries, and general merchandise. It is stated that a few years ago Alexandria was the sixth sugar market in the United States. In view of the importance of the city of Alexandria, of the extent of its commerce, and of the conditions above stated, the removal of the bar recently formed is regarded as an improvement worthy to be undertaken by the general government. It is thought that the establishment of harbor lines should be included in this improvement."

MARSHALS AND DEPUTIES INDICTED.

The Wayne county, W. Va., grand jury yesterday returned indictments for murder against all the deputy United States marshals and deputy sheriffs who in December made the raid on the Vinson home, on Tug river, in which William Vinson and Deputy Sheriff Joseph Lital, of Louisa, Ky., were killed and a number of others injured.

It had been alleged that Joseph Vinson had been engaged in the illegal sale of liquor and had frequently defied a deputy United States marshal and other officials to make the raid, in which fully 100 shots were fired.

The deputy sheriff of Louisa, Ky., had professed his services, especially for the raid. Those indicted for the murder are Daniel W. Cunningham, of Charleston; Sam Davis, Joseph Messenger, and John Brumfield, of Huntington; Sheriff Dick Stace, of Louisa, Ky.; Roland Salmonds and Thomas Cochran of Caswell.

The allegation was made before the grand jury that the officials after firing on the Vinson home made a raid on the interior, and breaking open a trunk carried away more than $1,500 in money and other valuables.

The attorneys for the indicted men, after their arrest, will institute habeas corpus proceedings in an attempt to throw their cases into the Federal tribunal instead of the courts of Wayne county.

COST OF A TOGA.

The official statement of United States Senator Isaac Stephenson, with affidavit attached, shows that the expenses of his candidacy for the nomination of United States senator at the primary election in Wisconsin on September 1, 1908, amounted to $107,798.
